PEACE

Part 1 of a Trilogy

Peace is about the death of a relationship and the power of its resurrection, reflecting the relationship between a man and a woman as seen in today's society. Can a relationship die at a certain point and change its form? Is there hope for the resurrection of love in the other person through liberated energies that could create something new and lasting, capable of sustaining the relationship?

Wrote about us in Tanec:

Actress, performer, and director Monika Haasova, along with Hungarian dancer and performer Péter Cseri, explores the dynamics of a partnership in the first part of the trilogy PEACE. Set in the intimate space of a yurt, with the offer of coffee creating a cozy atmosphere, the duo navigates through the small, everyday challenges of a relationship. These moments repeatedly escalate, showcasing communication breakdowns while also revisiting joyful life events. Here, both creators demonstrate a keen sense of parody and irony. They avoid overacting, focusing instead on a natural expression, skillfully combining and pacing the emotional atmosphere. "

Trio Olga is a physical theatre company, known in the Netherlands as "Mime Theatre," that bridges the experiences of Slovak creators with the significant artistic interaction of the Dutch environment, where the creators (Monika Haasova and Péter Cseri) worked for 16 years. The company facilitates a mutual exchange of experiences in the field of physical theatre, experimenting with form, movement, and thematic content in theatrical works. Trio Olga has had the opportunity to present their work not only in Slovakia and the Czech Republic but also at international festivals in Germany, the Netherlands, and Brazil.
